

Research Project

IRON-HFpEF - Iron substitution with ferric carboxymaltose as treatment strategy for heart failure patients with preserved ejection fraction: A prospective, double-blind placebo-controlled trial

Project funded by own resources

Project title IRON-HFpEF - Iron substitution with ferric carboxymaltose as treatment strategy for heart failure patients with preserved ejection fraction: A prospective, double-blind placebo-controlled trial

Principal Investigator(s) Dieterle, Thomas ;

Project Members Bösing, Maria ; Thesenvitz, Elke ; Brighenti-Zogg, Stefanie ; Mundwiler, Jonas ;

Organisation / Research unit

Faculty of Medicine

Departement Klinische Forschung

Bereich Medizinische Fächer (Klinik)

Bereich Medizinische Fächer (Klinik) / Allgemeine innere Medizin Liestal (Leuppi)

Project start 27.05.2019

Probable end 30.06.2021

Status Completed

IRON-HFpEF is a prospective, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial that investigates the function and structural effects of iron substitution with ferric carboxymaltose on the cardiovascular system in heart failure patients with preserved ejection fraction.

Financed by

Other funds

Add publication

Add documents

Specify cooperation partners